Unlike contracts, torts are not based on the consent of the parties involved. Generally, torts occur when a party's action affects the profit, safety, health, or privacy of another. If the offender can establish that the aggrieved consented to their harmful actions, it can ask the court to dismiss the victim's damages claims.

Torts are categorized into Intentional Torts (a person had substantial knowledge that his/her actions would result in harm), Strict Liability Torts (Torts which focus only on the physical aspect of the wrongful act), and Negligent Torts. When a person commits a Tort, the court will not look at the Tort but at the harm or injury suffered by the victim as a result of that Tort.
