Public Financial Management (PFM) challenges differ in size and scope across countries. Increased revenue for the health sector alone will not achieve UHC goals unless well-functioning PFM systems are in place. To leverage PFM reform in the health sector, WHO provides support in the following areas:

Sustainability of the governmental public health system is dependent principally on the financial health of state and local public health agencies. This is a challenge since public health programs and services are often provided in fiscally strapped environments (e.g., government revenue declines, budget reductions, economic recessions, unfunded mandates).
