Actually, infinity is not a number it is an imagination of a number which is very very very.....big (to that extent that we cannot even think about but we can just imagine it). If 2,3 any other natural number is divided by that number i.e, infinity it will be similar to 0 (approximately).  $2/\infty=0$  (approximately) 2.3K views

Infinity (comic book) - Wikipedia

Thus answer to your question is infinity, here since  $a=2$ . However if  $a$  tends to 1 then  $a^b$  becomes an indeterminate quantity. This is because we do not know whether  $a$  is approaching 1 from LHS or RHS. If  $a$  approaches 1 from LHS then the answer will be 0, otherwise it will be infinity.

"Times Infinity Volume 2" like Volume 1 was written over a two year period between the spring of 2014 and summer of 2015. From the album's inception there was little thought given to generating singles but a focus on building a cohesive unit that would have openers, center pieces and cleanup hitters. Almost like building a dream team of musical songs on an album. There are some overt ...
