

---

Scientists Have Long Dreamed of a Memory Prosthesis. The First Human Trials Look Promising

Most students in psychology and psychiatry programs today are too young to have any firsthand memory of the moral ... The Globalization of the American Psyche. ” ...

---

The Forgotten Lessons of the Recovered Memory Movement

As I have already confessed several times in this column, the pandemic was not kind to my memory. Even after the worst of the virus-related disruptions had passed I found myself frequently walking ...

---

A Neuroscientist Explains When It's Time to Start Worrying About Your Memory

Virtual memory CD8+ T cells (T VM) are a relatively recent discovery in humans. A new review discusses what is known about them from mouse models and their cellular equivalents in humans ...

---

Understanding virtual memory CD8+ T Cells

Whether you're old or young, memory can be a challenge for all kinds of reasons, and most of us would welcome strategies to help improve our memory. Waterloo's researchers in psychology have been ...

---

Actions speak louder than words when it comes to memory

Brain electrodes designed to mimic the hippocampus appear to boost the encoding of memories—and are twice as effective in people with poor memory. A unique form of brain stimulation appears to ...

---

A memory prosthesis could restore memory in people with damaged brains

The brain doesn't process all information equally; some is easier to remember than other data — it all depends on many factors which affect memory. How memory works Understanding episodic (real-life ...

---

Faster and better memory

The effects of exercise are much more nuanced, as specific intensities of exercise over a long period of time are associated with different aspects of memory and mental health, according to a new ...

---

Fitness trackers reveal links among exercise, memory, and mental health

One of the most upsetting aspects of age-related memory decline is not being able to remember the face that accompanies the name of a person you just talked with hours earlier. While researchers ...

Copyright code : 06e880b9f0b0e78823c97baf45123b87