Modernism: On or About December 1910 Human Nature Changed. "On or about December 1910 human nature changed.". – Virginia Woolf wrote in her essay Mr Bennett and Mrs. Brown in 1924. "All human relations shifted," Woolf continued, "and when human relations change there is at the same time a change in religion, conduct, politics, and literature."

Modernism: On or About December 1910 Human Nature Changed...

In 1924 Virginia Woolf announced that "on or about December 1910 human character changed". Is there a serious theory of historical change proposed here, or is this a flippant comment? Is it both of these at once?

I'm glad to announce that my new edited collection, Virginia Woolf and December 1910: Studies in Rhetoric and Context, is now published from Illuminati Books. I hope you'll agree with me that it's a very fine looking volume indeed, and I'm sure you'll find the contents every bit as impressive as the physical appearance of the volume itself.

Virginia Woolf and December 1910

Virginia Woolf quote: On or about December, 1910, human character changed. I am not saying that one went out, as one might into a garden, and there saw that a rose had flowered, or that a hen had laid an egg. The change was not sudden and definite like that.

On or about December 1910, human character changed. I am not saying that one went out, as one might into a garden, and there saw that a rose had flowered, or that a hen had laid an egg. The change was not sudden and definite like that. But a change there was, nevertheless; and, since one must be arbitrary, let us date it about the year 1910.
